

BIOGRAPHIES

Dr Marc Finaud

Head of Arms Proliferation and Diplomatic Tradecraft, Geneva Center for Security Policy (GCSP)

m.finaud@gcsp.ch

Marc Finaud is a former French diplomat who has been seconded to the Geneva Centre for Security Policy (GCSP) between 2004 and 2013 and now works for this international foundation, where he trains diplomats and military officers in international and human security and conducts research in those fields. During his 36-year career as a diplomat (from 1977 to 2013), he served in several bilateral postings (in the Soviet Union, Poland, Israel, Australia) as well as in multilateral missions (to the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe, the Conference on Disarmament, the United Nations). He holds master's degrees in International Law and Political Science. He was also Senior Resident Fellow (WMD Programme) at the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research (UNIDIR) between 2013 and 2015. He is now also a Swiss citizen. List of publications: www.gcsp.ch/marc-finauds-publication.

Dr Joan-Josep Vallbé

Serra Hünter Associate Professor of Political Science, University of Barcelona (Spain)

vallbe@ub.edu

Dr Joan-Josep Vallbé is Serra Hünter Associate Professor of Political Science at the Law Faculty of the University of Barcelona (Spain). His research includes the empirical analysis of judicial behaviour and in general the political economy of judicial politics. He gained his PhD in Political Science and Organizational Decision Analysis from the University of Barcelona in 2009 and a Graduate Degree in Political Science from the Autonomous University of Barcelona in 2000. Prior to his current position, he was Researcher at the Institute of Law and Technology (UAB), Visiting Researcher at the Legal Information Institute of Cornell University, and Postdoctoral Researcher at the University of Amsterdam. His publications include: "Frameworks for Modeling Political Cognition and Decisions in Institutional Environments" in Frameworks for Modeling Political Cognition and Decisions in Institutional Environments. Springer Verlag, 2015; Vallbé, J.-J., Magre, J., Tomàs, M. "Being Metropolitan: the Effects of Individual and Contextual Factors on Shaping Metropolitan Identity", Journal of Urban Affairs. 2015; Magre, J., Vallbé, J.J., Tomàs, M. "Moving to suburbia? Effects of residential mobility on community engagement", Urban Studies. Vol. 53, No 1, 2016; Vallbé, J. J., Magre, J. "The Road Not Taken. Effects of residential mobility on local electoral turnout", Political Geography. Vol. 60. 2017; Vallbé, J.J., Gonzalez Beilfuss, M., Kalir, B. "Across the Sloping Meadow Floor: An Empirical Analysis of Preremoval Detention of Noncitizens", Law & Society Review. 2019. He contributed to many projects such as: "Observatorio de Cultura Judicial del CGPJ. Estudio de datos cuantitativos y cualitativos, diseño y construcción de una red telemática de soporte para los jóvenes jueces en su primer destino, dependiente de la Escuela Judicial Española" (2001-2004), Ministry of Education; "Una nueva arquitectura local: eficiencia, dimensión y democracia (2014-2016), Ministry of the Economy and Competition; "Copyright in an Age of Access: Alternatives to Copyright Enforcement" (2012-2015), Nederlandse Organisatie voor Wetenschappelijk Onderzoek (NWO); "The Social Life of State Deportation Regimes: A comparative Study of the Implementation Interface” (2016-2016); etc.

Dr Carine David

Professor of Law, University of French Antilles, Pointe-à-Pitre, Guadeloupe, France
carine.david@univ-antilles.fr

Carine David is Professor of Public Law at the University of the French Antilles. She specializes in French overseas territories, particularly the normative autonomy of overseas French communities and the political regimes of developing island states and territories. She is also working on environmental issues and climate change, as well as recently on the right to happiness. She is the editorial director of the Happiness Law Review (<http://www.oib-france.com/review-juridique-du-bonheur/>). She has written some forty articles on political regimes on these different themes. She is the author of a book (Essay on the legislative power of New Caledonia - The duality of the legislative source in a unitary state, L'Harmattan, 2009). She has directed or co-directed several collective works (Fifteen Years of legislative power in New Caledonia - On the Path of Maturity, PUAM, 2017; Sustainable Development in Oceania - Towards a New Ethics? PUAM and PUP, 2015; The integration of custom into the development of the environmental standard, Bruylant, 2012). She is also a member of several other networks of researchers: the Global Network on Human Rights and Environment (GNHRE), the International Center for Comparative Environmental Law (CIDCE), the Pacific Islands Political Science Association (PIPSA) or the French Association of Constitutional Law (AFDC) and the Association of Jurists in the Law of Overseas Territories (AJDOM).

Dr Jorge M. Farinacci Fernós

Associate Professor, School of Law, University of Puerto Rico, United States Commonwealth
jofarin@hotmail.com

Born in 1982, Jorge M. Farinacci-Fernós is an associate professor at the Inter American University of Puerto Rico School of Law. He was a PPT candidate for San Juan City Council in 2016. He graduated from Harvard Law School in 2013 with a dissertation on “Another pin falls: the end of the dormant commerce clause as a substantive obstacle to a public economy as part of the U.S. Supreme Court's continued path of taking the courts and the Constitution out of the economic policy business”. Among his publications are: Cien años de la Escuela de Derecho de la Universidad de Puerto Rico 1913-2013 (2013); La constitución obrera de Puerto Rico : el partido socialista y la Convención Constituyente (2014); Looking beyond the Negative-Positive Rights Distinction: Analyzing Constitutional Rights according to Their Nature, Effect, and Reach (2018); Hermenéutica puertorriqueña : cánones de interpretación jurídica (2019); Puerto Rico's Constitutional Paradox: colonial subordination, democratic tension, and... progressive content (2021).

Dr Marie Valerie Uppiah

Professor of International Law, University of Mauritius
m.uppiah@uom.ac.mu

Marie Valerie Uppiah is a Senior lecturer in International Trade Law and Law of the Sea & Ocean Governance at the University of Mauritius. She is currently the Head of the Law Department at the University of Mauritius. Valerie was a former student of Loreto College of Mahebourg. She has a BA (Hons) in Law and Management from the University of Mauritius (Mauritius) and a master's in Law (LLM) in International Business Law from Birmingham City University (UK). She is currently undertaking her Doctoral Studies at the University of Pretoria (South-Africa). Valerie is also a Fellow of the NAM&ST Centre & ZMT Leibniz Centre for Tropical Marine Research (Bremen, Germany). Valerie undertakes research in the fields of ocean governance, international trade, and maritime law. Her research works have been published by internationally recognised publication houses. Her publications are being used by local, regional, and international institutions to promote the use and development of marine spatial planning by Coastal States. Valerie Uppiah is a member of the West Indian Ocean Marine Science Association (WIOMSA), the Women Managers in the Maritime Sector of Eastern and Southern Africa (WOMESA) and Women in Maritime Sector (WIMS). She also forms part of the African Union Election Observation Mission (AUEOM). In 2019, Valerie was nominated as a finalist of the prestigious UK Alumni Award 2018/2019.