Dr Laura-Stella Enonchong is a Senior Lecturer in Law. Her research interests are in the field of comparative constitutional law, international and comparative human rights, law, and governance (particularly in countries of the Global South), the African Union and the African Human Rights System.

Her recent scholarship has focused on constitutional governance in Cameroon, international constitutional law, and the protection of disability rights under the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights.

Prior to joining De Montfort Law School, Laura was associate Lecturer in the University of Warwick and Deputy Coordinator of the civil society organisation, the Opportunity Foundation.

She also acts as expert consultant on issues of constitutionalism in Africa and has provided advice to international and regional organisations such as the World Bank, the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance (IDEA) and the African Union Commission on aspects relating to human rights, refugees, and constitutionalism in Cameroon.

Laura has also contributed to civil society organisations in Birmingham working with refugees. These include the Refugee Action where she worked on the CARE Project and the Birmingham Refugee Council where she worked on the 'Women's Project' winning the regional Marsh Awards for designing a project on social integration of refugees in Birmingham. Her most recent publications include: The Constitution and Governance in Cameroon (Routledge 2021); 'Chad's Covert Coup and the Implications for Democratic Governance in Africa', The Conversation (May 2021); 'International Constitutional Law and Judicial Review of Domestic Human Rights Legislation', Vienna Journal on International Constitutional Law, (2019) ICL 87 - 118.
